In today's globalization environment, one of the important criteria for the development of society is the spiritual maturity and intellectual potential of a person. The sustainable development of any state is closely related not only to economic and political reforms, but also to a consistent policy aimed at improving the spiritual life of society. From this point of view, spiritual and educational reforms are of particular priority in the development model of New Uzbekistan. The concept of New Uzbekistan is aimed at glorifying human dignity, building a just and open society, and ensuring the conscious participation of citizens, and the spiritual and educational sphere is an important support in this process.

Spiritual and educational reforms in the concept of development of New Uzbekistan. The idea of New Uzbekistan is aimed at radically renewing all spheres of social life, in which spiritual and educational reforms are defined as a strategic direction. In this concept, human interests, their rights and freedoms are elevated to the level of the highest value. Spiritual and educational reforms serve to renew the consciousness of members of society, form a healthy worldview, and increase civic responsibility. In particular, educating the younger generation in the spirit of patriotism, national pride, and social activism is an important priority of the policy of New Uzbekistan.

Spiritual and educational reforms in the new Uzbekistan are being implemented based on the following priority areas: Preservation and development of national values: National values are embodied in the historical memory, customs, traditions and spiritual heritage of the people. Preservation of these values and development based on the requirements of the times ensure the spiritual stability of society. Improving the spirituality of youth: Youth education is one of the most important areas of spiritual and educational reforms. The role of spiritual and educational disciplines is being strengthened in the education system, and special attention is being paid to protecting young people from foreign ideas. Ensuring the harmony of education and upbringing: In the new Uzbekistan, education should not be limited only to the provision of knowledge, but should be carried out in harmony with upbringing. This serves to form a harmonious personality. Harmony of national and universal values: The effectiveness of spiritual and educational reforms directly depends on the harmony of national and universal values.

National values express the identity of the people, while universal values include moral standards common to all humanity. This harmony serves to strengthen the atmosphere of tolerance, peace and mutual respect in society. Especially in the context of globalization, the adoption of universal ideas while preserving national identity is of urgent importance. Social significance of spiritual and educational reforms: Spiritual and educational reforms have a direct impact on the socio-political life of society. They serve to increase the legal culture of citizens, strengthen social cohesion and establish democratic values. In addition, these reforms form a healthy spiritual environment in society and create a solid foundation for sustainable development.

Conclusion:In conclusion, the spiritual and educational reforms being implemented in New Uzbekistan are an important factor in the development of society. The priority areas of these reforms are aimed at glorifying human dignity, ensuring the harmony of national and universal values. This is of great importance in building a stable, just and democratic society.
